

Meanwhile in the world of morphology ...

Rush. Hour.

All laboratory technicians know the stress of the morning rush hour. The blood samples that are piling up. The service levels that have to be met. The doctors impatiently waiting for their results. It's at times like these, when you find yourself stuck in an excess of slides, you wish you could clone yourself in order to meet the demands in a safe, secure and efficient way.

Here's the good news: With CellaVision you can load up to 96 slides at a time and get the digital images presented to you on a computer screen, with the white blood cells pre-classified and the red blood cells pre-characterized, for your review and verification. The morning rush hour turns into a productive walk in the park.

CELLAVISION

www.cellavision.com

Look out for the next issue in mid-December.